Just to clarify: you have the first 40kwh battery in a Gen I Leaf that uses that translator. There have been quite a few conversions in the last year that use translators developed by members here, like the MUXSAN CAN Bridge. Nissan has also been using new 40kwh packs as warranty replacements for 2016-2017 30kwh Leafs with degraded batteries.

Personally on our 40kwh 2019 leaf, 34478 miles, 24 QCs, 1601 L1/L2s, which has a SOH given as 91.62% I mainly L2 charge to 100% (dash so really less than 95%) about once a week, just before we go on our larger normal week journey which takes the battery down to about 80% and then charge during the week to about 85% if it goes below 50%.

We need a place to post battery info, temperature observations, and other things relating to the new 40kwh pack. There are a few stats scattered in other topics, but having this one should make it easier to keep track of them. Links to the other posts would be a good idea. When I went to...

Voor wie is een thuisaccu van 40 kWh geschikt? Voor een gemiddeld huishouden is een thuisbatterij met een capaciteit van 40 kWh te groot. Weinig gezinnen kunnen die opslagcapaciteit optimaal benutten. Ter vergelijking: voor een gemiddeld gezin met een gemiddeld aantal zonnepanelen volstaat een thuisbatterij die zo'n 4 kWh aan stroom kan opslaan. Voor ...

The battery is a 30Kwh and currently the SOH(hope thats the correct term) is at 9 bars out of 12. We were told by the dealer that once we get to 8 bars, a replacement will be free. ... I can confirm that Nissan is replacing the 30 KWh batteries with a 40kWh battery. He took it to the dealer, they confirmed the 8 bars, ordered the battery, and ...

I can't recommend an installer, but if you can find a good used 40kwh battery from a 2018+ Leaf, that will go in fairly easily, and will nearly double the original range of the 2013. If you see a used 30kwh battery, resist the temptation to buy it - those packs are just too hard to predict, as far as longevity and long-term soundness go.

Same number of cells in series, voltage range is compatible. It fits in the car mechanically with some reasonable adaptation of the car, spacers on the sides, longer rear brackets, fixing the battery covers to fit. The bottom of the battery is 1.5 inches closer to the ground, and you're having around an extra 300 pounds all the time.

If you're driving a Leaf with the 30kWh battery, for example, EV Rides can upgrade your setup with a 40kWh battery pack, effectively extending your range. These upgrades still don't come cheap, however. Even with using in-tact pre-owned battery packs, the process is still quite complex and therefore comes at a premium.
