We believe the microgrid industry needs to develop a small, modular microgrid solution that could be designed once, built in a controlled environment, deployed via truck and installed in a day. This kind of "grid on a skid" could be designed in a few standard sizes to meet the needs of different classes of customers.

Many of the markets QUBE Renewables are targeting - whether that's the military, refugee camps, or rural communities in the developing world - are also prime testing grounds for off-grid solar and microgrid projects. Fortunately, Clayton points out that small-scale anaerobic digesters and microgrid solutions make excellent bedfellows.

The US modular microgrid market, and the international remote microgrid market are both driven by the commercial and industrial (C& I) sector. C& I captures 46.6% of the global modular microgrid market share while 40% is captured by the remote microgrid market. By 2029, however, C& I and remote modular microgrids will likely switch positions.
