Indian conglomerate Reliance Industries Ltd (BOM:500325) has wrapped up the acquisition of UK sodium-ion battery technology developer Faradion Ltd in a deal with an enterprise value of GBP 100 million (USD 135m/EUR 119.8m).

Reliance New Energy (RNEL), a wholly owned subsidiary of Reliance Industries, has fully acquired Faradion, a UK-based sodium-ion battery technology company, by acquiring the remaining 7.99% equity shares.. Previously, RNEL held a 92.01% equity stake in Faradion following the signing of a definitive agreement to acquire a 100% shareholding in the ...

To commercialise the Na-ion technology, Faradion was founded in 2011 as the world's first non-aqueous Na-ion battery company. Over the years, we have made rapid progress in increasing the all-around performance of Na-ion batteries, benefitting from decades" worth of industry experience and prior Na-ion as well as Li-ion academic research.

About Faradion. Faradion is the world leader in sodium-ion battery technology that provides low cost, high performance, safe and sustainable energy. Its proprietary technology delivers leading-edge, cost effective solutions for a broad range of applications, including mobility, energy storage, back-up power and energy in remote locations.

Faradion welcomes the recent announcement by Nissan to build a battery gigafactory with Chinese manufacturer Envision in Britain. It underscores an opportunity for the UK to take a leading role in next-generation battery technologies and create thousands of new jobs. However, more must be done for the UK to show global leadership in the sector.

Reliance New Energy Solar in India has bought UK sodium battery pioneer Faradion in a deal worth ₹163,100m (US$135m) RNE SL will also invest ₹25 million as growth capital to accelerate commercial roll out for a planned battery gigafactory in India. The company is a wholly owned subsidiary of Indian conglomerate Reliance Industries.

Compared to alternative battery technologies, in particular lithium-ion and lead acid, Faradion's sodium-ion technology is claimed to offer significant benefits. As sodium is among the most abundantly available element, there is no dependence and use of cobalt, lithium, graphite, or copper for making batteries with the company's technology.

Faradion has developed a strategic, wide-reaching and extensive IP portfolio to cover numerous aspects of the Na-ion technology. Our IP portfolio, which includes some jointly-held patents, comprises 21 current patent families (including eight granted), focussing on three key areas of sodium-ion technology: Cell Materials: This includes cathode, anode and electrolyte materials ...

Faradion was started in 2011, by Dr Jerry Barker, Dr Chris Wright and Ashwin Kumaraswamy, to develop and bring to market sodium-ion technology. It has developed a strategic, wide-reaching and extensive IP portfolio, comprising 21 patent families covering Na-ion technology. It was founded on the premise that sodium-ion batteries are cheaper and safer than lithium-ion,

It follows hot on the heels from Reliance's acquisition of sodium-ion battery technology firm Faradion for an enterprise value of US$135 million. The Lithium Werks deal is being presented as an acquisition of assets rather than the company itself through a share purchase, though it appears to mean effectively the same thing.
